Can you give me a call please. Thanks

PK, I don't care that you have your girlfriend here. Haha she knows you have two children and an ex ex-wife. It's OK I'm sure she can handle you being an adult and speaking to me even when she's there. You have to start being able to live an honest life. I thought you were finally ready to?

Dorit I have zero issue with speaking to you zero issue with you knowing about Tatiana She's a grown-up your age she has grown up children. She's a very successful worldly woman who, of course respects and would like for open honest relations. I'm not currently with her but my issues with you unfortunately, are not about that They are about something far far more troubling .. I late on Friday was sent the last six months

I late on Friday was sent the last six months of your bank statements the expenditure is incredibly troubling and coming from a Caring perspective. I am extremely concerned. The numbers present as someone who either has a major shopping problem or you have so much money that I'm unaware of I have zero intention of trying to discuss this with you on the telephone as this will become litigious I have provided Justin

I'm not even sure if you're aware, but below is a snapshot of your luxury (named) expenses from October through January. For you to tell me, you have no money to take our children away on spring break or to help make jagger and Phoenix birthdays, while within weeks of these dates you have spent hundreds literally hundreds of thousands on clothes is totally PK, I'm not interested in reading a long drawn out text message. I'm not interested in going backwards.

We either can have conversations like we agreed or we're back to where we were and you have no interest in having an amicable relationship like you said you did

I'm not looking to argue. I don't care about Tatiana or anything else you're doing in your life. That's your life to live PK and I want you to be happy.

I'm not interested in going back and forth or revisiting the same cycle. What matters is stability for the kids, consistency, and follow-through. That's it.

I've done everything I can to keep things steady for them, and I will continue to do so. I'm always open to a better way of co-parenting, but that requires real consistency, not words. When you're ready to show up in that way, it will make everything easier for everyone. In the meantime, I'll

Where are you getting

Dorit I have your bank

They were legally

Because those are personal, they're not for your consumption and if you are invading my

Fortunately for you I have no intention of sharing these outside of counsel
However the concept you have that you can do what you like, whilst asking me to make essential payments on your behalf is not quite the case

Choosing to handle this publicly instead of privately, especially where the children are concerned, is so sad and incredibly disappointing.

I gave you the benefit of the doubt far longer than I should have, but at this point, whatever respect remained is gone. Not because of one decision, but because of a consistent pattern of poor ones that have created far more damage than ever needed to exist.

needed to exist.

You're nearly 60, and still making impulsive, short sighted choices for the sake of attention, without any regard for the impact. It's hard to understand how someone at this stage can lack that level of awareness.

You may not be capable of seeing more than a step ahead, but when this inevitably unravels the way it is sure to, as it always does for you, you'll be left facing the same reality again, only

When the truth catches up, there won't be anyone left to defend it. And the opportunity to have handled this differently won't still be there.

My focus has always been the children and their stability. That will not change, and it is not something I am willing to compromise on.

The past two years have already made it clear that trying to manage perception instead of doing what's right only makes things worse. The only way to change that is to act differently.

Relying on what you are "legally" required to provide, rather than choosing to do your

Continuing as things have been over the past two years will only increase conflict, increase cost, and lead back to the same result, with greater consequences.
