

Janine is a very unstable person her moods change every 10 minutes its like she has multiple personalities. and everytime things get tuff for her she runs to taking pills. she abuses every prescription she gets. she obtains prescriptions from the doctor for 20 vicodin and proceeds to get them off the street, she gets away with it through testing by keeping the original prescription. she has told me on many occasions that when she is done with testing she is going to use meth and inject heroin/cocaine, and that she loves the feeling of the needle. she left the house one day so high on pills that she ran her truck into the house and 1 hour later rearended another vehicle, i felt so bad for her that even though i had a suspended license i started driving her everywhere which resulted in my being arrested for driving on a suspened license. the fact is that Janine was unstable before she left for oregon and I thought she would get better up there but she returned alot worse than when she left. I had the house set up nice for her return and in 2 days she had the house thrashed. its not a safe environment for children. she has no job so when money gets tight she wants to prostitute to a john who is a known drug dealer. now shes making a living selling stories about jesse to the press. she has also stated many times that when the childsupport kicks in from jesse everything will be alright and that she will spread the money around. I know first hand that Janine does not have sunnys best interest at heart, but just to make jesses life hard.
