

I Look at You all see the love there
that's sleeping - while my guitar gently weeps. I look at the floor and I see it needs sweeping, - still my guitar still weeps,

I don't know why nobody told you how to unfall your love. I don't know how ^{some} controlled you they bought and sold you.
Second verse

I look at the world and I notice it's turning
while my guitar gently weeps.

With every mistake we ^{and} ^{surely} be.
still my guitar gently weeps.

I don't know how you were diverted

You were prevented too:

I don't see how you got involved

how one alerted you

3/

while my guitar gently weeps,
as I'm sitting here doing nothing but aging
still my guitar G W

To Whom It May Concern,

The purpose of this letter is to serve as authentication of the handwriting of George Harrison and Ringo Starr. This handwriting, the lyrics to Harrison's signature song composition entitled "While My Guitar Gently Weeps", is on the reverse of a studio Recording Sheet which was used to account for the time and cost of a single recording session. Written by both in blue ballpoint and blue fountain pen on the back of this sheet, George has started out at the top by writing "I look at You all see the love there thats sleeping - While my guitar gently weeps" and he continued at the bottom of the sheet with "While my Guitar Gently weeps as I'm sitting here doing nothing but aging still my guitar G W". All writing in between is in the hand of Ringo, and this writing is not his typical script, which is difficult at times to read, as it has been altered somewhat by him for the sake of readability. It is complete with his misspellings, a Ringo trademark, and shows him working out one of the misspelled words on the side. "While My Guitar Gently Weeps" is one of George Harrison's most popular and well liked songs, and it is on the historically significant Beatles 'White Album', one which is highly regarded as the one of greatest rock albums of all time. This lyric sheet represents a working draft used during the recording of the song "While My Guitar Gently Weeps". Beatle song lyrics, such as these, are rarely ever found in private collections.

I hereby guarantee the authenticity of the aforementioned song lyric which has been written out by George Harrison and Ringo Starr. This guarantee is without time limit. This item is reproduced below, reduced in size.

Sincerely,

Frank Caiazzo
