I am meeting this afternoon with a couple interested in mission 2. Any progress on joining us this year and likely dates?

My son's friend researched what could go wrong and put a little scare in him.

I'm trying to talk him down.

He's excited to go, but concerned about the danger

I'm happy to have a video call with him. Curious what the uninformed would say the danger is and whether it's real or imagined.

He researched the marine life at that depth and perceived threats to the vessel.

A sperm whale attacks the sub or a giant squid grabs it and compromises the hull.

Really st[redacted]id stuff.

Yeah very stupid the pressure is over 100 million pounds no sperm whale or squid is ever going to be able to mess with the sub While there's obviously risk it's way safer than flying in a helicopter or even scuba diving. There hasn't been even an injury in 35 years in a non-military subs. I'll send an email with what happened when a swordfish attacked Alvin.

Any progress? Fyi deepest depth for sperm whale is less than 3,000m and we are larger than it's mouth can open <https://www.nhm.ac.uk/discover/quick-questions/how-deep-can-a-whale-dive.html#:~:text=The%20deepest%20recorded%20dive%20was,1%2C000%20to%202%2C000%20metres%20deep>

Not yet. I'm really not concerned about getting eaten by a whale. I'll set up a Skype call to answer questions

Sounds good. Free much of next
