Dear Ms. Spears:

Congratulations to you and your attorney, Mathew Rosengart, on your historic victories. It goes without saying that we have been following your conservatorship closely and were elated that you were able to both remove your father as a years-long conservator in September and finally terminate your conservatorship entirely in November. Your journey towards justice will inspire and empower many others who are improperly silenced by the conservatorship process.

Many concerning issues that are commonplace in the guardianship and conservatorship process were brought to light. Especially troubling was news that, for years, you were unable to hire your own counsel to represent your personal and financial interests. Other issues surrounding the initial petition, the eventual permanence of the conservatorship, and being forced to engage in employment against your will, are all equaling concerning.

To that end, we wanted to personally invite you and your counsel to meet with us in Congress at a mutually convenient time to describe in your own words how you achieved justice. There is no doubt that your story will empower countless others outside the millions that are already inspired by you and your art. Please know that you have absolutely no obligation to do anything more but fight for yourself, but if you are willing, we would appreciate learning more about the emotional and financial turmoil you faced within the conservatorship system.

We applaud your inspiring fight and stand ready to assist in any way that we can. Please feel free to contact Virginia Poe (virginia.poe@mail.house.gov) with Rep. Charlie Crist or Sarah Shapiro (sarah.shapiro@mail.house.gov) with Rep. Eric Swalwell for further scheduling purposes.

Sincerely,

Charlie Crist
